The top o' the mountain to you, Doctor Cook! That is, if you found it.

Reducing the price of automobile tires at the beginning of winter doesn't interest Vermonters so much as it would to reduce the price of skids.

A Vermont legislator wants to tax bachelors and limit his right of suffrage. The bachelorettes will then join the suffragettes in lobbying only.

There is no need of a bounty on black bear. On the contrary, many people would pay roundly for the chance to kill one for a trophy rug, and the hunters are bound to keep the number down to a minimum.

The loyalty of ex-Governor Curtis Guild of Massachusetts to United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, in the face of the possible chance that he himself might be chosen as Lodge's successor, is a notable illustration of patriotism. Ex-Gov. Guild says he thinks it would be to the disadvantage of the nation and Massachusetts to turn Senator Lodge out of office at the present time.

The Randolph Herald and News doubts the statement by Supt. Ferguson of the Vermont Anti-saloon league that the Brantree saloon sold $125,000 worth of liquor a year under the license regime, and the Northfield News doubts the same gentleman's statement regarding the output of the Northfield saloons under license. If the Brantree saloon sold $125,000 worth of liquor a year, that would make an average of over $400 a day trade. Since guessing seems to be allowed in this matter, we guess the Brantree saloon did not sell an average of half that amount, for the section which the saloon drew its patronage from was not large enough to create one-half the demand which $400 a day represents. The statement by Supt. Ferguson looks like a very wild guess.

ADJOURNMENT OVER THANKSGIVING

The best course for the Vermont legislature to pursue will be to take a recess, beginning next Friday, November 18, and continuing to Tuesday, November 29, without pay, of course, meanwhile. The week in which Thanksgiving day falls would be of little value, because it would be so broken up, as the day itself would be observed as a holiday and that would leave but Tuesday and part of Wednesday, preceding, to hold sessions, and the members would not consider the proposition of a Friday session following Thanksgiving day. So the best way one can figure it, there would be only a day and a half in which to carry on the work of the legislature; and that would not be worth the return to Montpelier. Therefore, let the legislature take a recess at the end of next week and skip the following week, to return early the next week ready to wind up the affairs of the sessions in good order.

LOCATION FOR PROPOSED AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL

If the state of Vermont is to establish an agricultural school of a lower grade than the State Agricultural college, and to supplement the work of the latter institution, it would find a good location, and a central one, in the vicinity of Randolph. The region thereabouts is good for farming purposes and, therefore, adapted for practical demonstrations of the science of farming, while it is geographically located, so that it would draw the students from all parts of the state. Moreover, the state may take away its support from the Randolph Normal school, which might so cripple that institution as to mean its ultimate decline, and the placing of the state agricultural school at Randolph would repay Randolph for such loss of the normal school support. Randolph is on the opposite side of the "mountain line" from the State Agricultural college, and its benefits would be correspondingly diffused for the state as a whole.

A CENSUS RECOUNT.

It would open the door to countless demands for recounts if Director Durand of the United States census bureau should reply affirmatively to some of the demands which are now before him, as advanced by dissatisfied cities and towns. Probably a large percentage of the communities in the country are not satisfied with the enumeration of their citizens, believing in every case that the number should be larger than the 1910 census gives them; and if a few of them were to be given another count it would be no more than just that all of them should be given the same privilege, which would entail a huge expense on the United States government. Therefore, it would be better for Director Durand to stand by his determination and order recounts in only those places where there are undoubted evidences of fraud in the count of last April. Let those places which feel aggrieved over their census returns appropriate money for an independent recount of their population. Those figures could not replace the national census figures, but they would be valuable for advertising purposes, which is generally the one basis for demands for a recount.

Equality in the Hunting Family.

Funny, isn't it, how evenly the deer killing was sprinkled among the members of certain hunting parties and certain families? For one person to shoot more than a single deer is unlawful, but in some households every member got one apiece, and in one home it is said the family cat brought in a seven-pronged buck.—Randolph Herald and News.

Col. Estey's Resignation.

The resignation of Col. J. Gray Estey from the V. N. G. will be regretted, as he has been an efficient officer and his work in Vermont's military force for the last twenty years has been a power which helped it reach its high standard. Private business claims his time to such an extent that he feels he can no longer give the necessary time to the regiment, which is the reason for this resignation.—Bradford Opinion.

A Convenience

A checking account with a Bank is a great convenience; not only to the business and professional man, but to the farmer as well. More people would keep such accounts if they knew just how to go about it. We will gladly assist those who need help in getting started.

Randolph Wants School.

One of Governor Mead's cherished ideas is the establishment of a state agricultural high school. Vermont is the only state given largely to agriculture that has nothing of the sort. It is believed that were such a school available, where boys could go and take a practical course in agriculture, while at the same time pursuing most of the ordinary cultural studies of the high school, it would be largely patronized. Such is the experience in other states. As matters stand, Vermont is doing very little toward educating her young farmers; indeed, she is doing nothing. If we are to have an intelligent and up-to-date husbandry, they need attention while they are young and best able to learn. It is Governor Mead's idea that a good way and place to begin would be by starting the school in connection with, or as a possible successor to, the state normal school at Randolph Center. It is a most favorable location for such an institution, with plenty of available rich land and several desirable buildings for such a plant already erected. If the properties could be acquired with the assurance that the state would use them in furtherance of the agricultural school idea, it might be well for all the parties interested and concerned. Randolph will not willingly part with her normal school unless there is something to take its place, but if Vermont really means to invest its money and put its shoulder to the wheel in behalf of so promising a scheme as an agricultural school, possibly with industrial and domestic science departments, and is not seeking to "let us down easy," there will be a disposition to meet the state half way.—Randolph Herald and News.

Jingles and Jest

One On Pa.

"My son," said Harker, as he pointed to the ivy in front of the cottage, "always be like the vine—climb." The little boy was thoughtful. "I don't think I'd like to be like that vine," he responded seriously. "And why not, Tommy?" "Cause if I was I'd be a porch-climber."—Chicago News.

A Chap to Skip.

The chap to skip on an ocean trip. And the sort to leave behind. With his driving store of nautical lore, is the garrulous, windy kind. He can figure why, if you let him try—And you needn't ask, at that—How one can tell from the captain's bell The time and where you're at.

Both starboard, port, and a lot of that sort. Of junk you'd fain forget. He always knows, and the way "she blows." And why the water's wet. If you sight a speck from the hurricane deck, No matter what be your view, You'll find him, there in a neighboring chair. And you've got to hear him through. So you have to hark to the seadog's bark, And you sing both small and low, Till you learn by a look at the purser's book He hails from Kokomo. —Puck.

EAST CALAIS.

Austin Sanders was in Cabot Monday. George Smith is working for D. I. Scott. Delorus Pelt died Oct. 10, after a long illness. Robert Emery of Cabot was in town Monday. George Sanders and wife are visiting in Connecticut. Dan Brown is moving into Riley Goodall's house. Austin Gore of East Montpelier is moving to town. Henry Carley and wife have moved to Newton, Conn. Albert George of Hardwick is visiting in town for a few days. Ella Brown is working for Earl Bliss, caring for his sister, Mrs. Bradish. Will Farrar and wife of North Wolcott passed through the town en route to Barre, in their automobile.

GROTON.

A good many are ill about town with the prevailing distemper. M. E. Beekley was in Marshfield yesterday repairing telephone lines. W. R. Carbee was at South Ryegate Friday setting up a monument. Mr. Larrow, who is ill with pneumonia, remains about the same. Mrs. Josephine Clark and son, Robert, of Wells River, were in town yesterday. Mr. and Mrs. Leon Patch and Mrs. Clark have vacated the tenement in the Hatch block. The Ladies' Missionary society of the Baptist church met yesterday afternoon with Miss S. H. Myers. The date of the reception for Mr. and Mrs. John Renfrew has been changed from Wednesday evening to Friday evening, November 18. Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Whitehill returned Monday from St. Johnsbury, where they had been on a visit of several days with their son, G. H. Whitehill, and family. C. A. Ricker, E. F. Clark, Charles Robinson, W. J. and Morris Brown and several others were in Montpelier Tuesday to attend a hearing on the bill relating to the pollution of the Wells river. Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Pillsbury, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Pillsbury and children and R. E. Pillsbury returned Thursday from Keene, N. H., where they went to attend the wedding of Waldo Pillsbury and Miss Sybil Sawyer.

HANCOCK.

David Blair is quite ill. Henry Manning is at work for Carl Eaton. Fred Andrews is at work for Dana Marsh. H. A. Pike, optician, has been in town recently. Carl Eaton is selling out groceries, etc., at cost. A much smaller number of deer were killed here this year than last season. The village school has one more week, after which there will be a short vacation. James Freeland has moved from the Gleason house into Will Riley's house in the village. Mrs. Alfred Joubert, whose home is in the West, has been visiting her uncle, Hiram Perry. A. D. Martin, who has been visiting his son in Acuteville for some weeks, has returned home. Mrs. Alice Leonard is improving in health and was able to attend the W. C. T. U. meeting this week. The W. C. T. U. met with Mrs. Alice Norton, who read a report of the convention recently held in Bristol. News has been received of the death of James King of Ripton. He will be remembered as an old-time resident of town, living on the branch road.

ROCHESTER.

Jesse Billings had the misfortune to lose a horse recently, valued at $150. Mrs. Ackey of South Hollow shot a large deer in the cornfield at her home. Will Martin lost a valuable Jersey bull last week, the animal having been mistaken for a deer and being shot by hunters. Clifford Martin, a young lad, had one of his eyes injured some time ago by being hit by an apple. It has now developed into a cataract and an operation will be necessary soon. Fears are expressed that the sight cannot be restored. The drama, "Clover Farm," which was presented at the G. A. R. hall recently, was a decided success, as it was sure to be under the management of Mrs. Harry Chaffee. All the actors took their parts unusually well and, judging from the crowded house, a goodly sum will have been realized for the I. O. O. F. and Rebekahs, for whose benefit the play was given.

Progressive Vermont?

"New Hampshire, Vermont, and Rhode Island—these three states, saved monuments of the group of New England states. Bass' election in New Hampshire shows how much the progressive counts for the Republican party."—Boston Record.

Did we have a victory for the "progressives" here in this state in September, or did we simply blaze the way for one to come next time Vermont is just about to enter into the upset of political readjustment and realignment that has already begun to manifest itself in other states? It may not be so tumultuous here, because temperamentally we are a calmer-minded people than some of our neighbors, but it will come to us, just the same, and it will stay with us until we break the bonds of the political habits of a few generations.—St. Albans Messenger.
